I put the best bet for climate change back in the snapshot front end. Once re-indexing is complete, I'll check where the homepage is.

That's fine Peter. Climate change homepage still doesn't have a top spot. But FAQ isn't a bad first choice.

We've reached the point where the crawl queue for snapshot is going down, rather than up. It's not indexing all that quickly. It's 177,767 out of an estimated 200,000 indexable URLs.

How about we circulate an email at 2pm, decide whether to do a quick outage to remove the banner, with what we have, which will be close but probably a few missing pages, or schedule an outage for this evening.

I'm inclined to go with the latter if we are not complete, since the fallout of people not finding specific pages is greater than the embarrassment of having a warning.
